Gracie Marie

Please allow us to send a warm, heartfelt congratulations on your engagement. Our exclusive 12,000 square-foot estate has hosted US Presidents and other dignitaries from Teddy Roosevelt (pictured on the next page on our front porch) to William Howard Taft, Babe Ruth to Lou Gehrig and the humorist Will Rodgers. Built in 1914, our property is one of the first major homesteads in the Southwest Denver area and remains one of the few landmarks of years past. Sitting high on a hill in the Ken Caryl Valley, we have spectacular views of the entire front range. From Red Rocks to Roxborough and right onto Downtown Denver through the famous hogback.

We look forward to hearing more about your wedding plans and sharing our beautiful property with you!

THANK YOU

OCTOBER 17, 1914 - John Charles Shaffer purchased the first 2,660 acres of what would become the Ken-Caryl Ranch for $100,000. He and his wife, Virginia Conser Shaffer (1850 – 1932), named it Ken-Caryl after their sons, Kent and Carroll. John Charles Shaffer (1852 – 1943) was born in Baltimore. He arrived in Chicago in 1874 where he worked as a grain commission trader. A few years later he purchased his first street railway company in Richmond, Indiana. From there he purchased street car lines in Indianapolis and Chicago. In 1901 he purchased the Chicago Evening Post newspaper and from there went on to acquire a string of newspapers in the Midwest. After visiting his son Kent, who was living in Denver, in 1913 Shaffer expanded his empire with the purchase of the Rocky Mountain News, the Denver Times and the Denver Republican newspapers.

The Denver Times reported that “Mr. Shaffer gave instructions for the drawing of plans for a summer home modeled on the colonial style to cost approximately $100,000. This building will be situated on the highest portion of the estate and is prophesied to become the nucleus of a colony of summer retreats for millionaires.” He immediately commissioned the architect Edbrooke, famous for his work on the Brown Palace, Oxford Hotel and many other prominent Denver buildings.

The Manor House included over 8,000 square feet of living area, with 20 rooms, six baths and a living room that was 80 feet long with mirrored fireplaces at each end. The dining room featured an enormous picture window overlooking a view so spectacular it was treated as a painting. Special draperies were designed to frame the view without obscuring it.

The Shaffers had friends in high places. Shaffer supported Theodore Roosevelt's Bull Moose party, and was friends with presidents William Taft and Warren Harding. Indiana Senator Albert Beveridge was one of his closest and oldest friends. President Theodore Roosevelt was a luncheon guest at the Manor House on October 24, 1916. Shaffer's relationship with Roosevelt was so close in 1917 that he carried a letter granting him immediate admittance to the president. This letter hangs on the walls of the mansion today. Presidents were not the only distinguished guests of The Manor House. The Shaffers hosted other industrial chieftains, actors, musicians and other prominent figures from the era.

The 110 foot flagpole behind The Manor House has a light at the top that was originally battery operated. The light could be seen from Denver through the saddle of the Dakota Hogback and when lit was an invitation to the social community to come join the Shaffers for a grand celebration.

We are proud to continue this tradition of hosting special guests and memorable events at The Historic Manor House.

John Shaffer and his wife Virginia had two sons, Kent and Carroll, which is how this gorgeous valley came to be named Ken-Caryl. Shaffer decided to build The Manor House in the foothills of Colorado because the high altitude helped to alleviate his son Kent's health issues. As his sons grew older, Mr. Shaffer went on to build homes for Kent, Carroll and their families. Today, the Kent House is known as 'Kent's Cottage,' while the two-story Carroll House no longer exists.

Kent was born October 9, 1885. He attended Hill School, followed by Yale. Later, Kent married Helen Phillips. The couple along with their two children lived in the cottage from 1917 into the 1930's.

Kent was a talented composer of music. His war ballad, "I Am Thinking Dear Of You" was presented in a concert in City Park in 1917 and all proceeds went to the Red Cross for the purchase of Liberty Bonds. Kent also composed the song "Ken-Caryl March" which he dedicated to the class of 1900 at Hinman School in Evanston, Illinois.

Kent's Cottage now serves as the guesthouse to The Manor House. The spacious home is ideal for hair and makeup, photos of the wedding party and of course, mimosas! Our dedicated wedding party attendant will make sure you have everything you need!
